Sperrazza has toured more than 67 countries, gathering personal and professional insight. “I’m called ‘Commodore Camille,’ as I am a veteran of over 50 cruises, and a certified travel specialist for Cunard, Princess, and Norwegian Cruise Lines,” she says. “It’s important for me to recommend places I have personally experienced, so I visit resorts and make personal connections every chance I get. I constantly educate myself to retain ‘certified expert’ status for cruise lines and destinations that include Saint Lucia, Jamaica, Puerto Rico, and others.” She has even been joined by clients on her travels, making it easy to attend to their needs. When not actively traveling with them, she remains in contact during their trips, assisting as needed. “For example, a client once contacted me to tell me she broke a leg, and I was able to get insurance information to her. Another time, a client had just arrived in the Caribbean for a week’s vacation—and had gotten a call that a family member had passed away. I got them on the next flight home.” This past May, Sperrazza sent 67 people to the St. Lucia Jazz Festival. Although the tour was planned nearly a year in advance, the travelers were having last-minute doubts. “To ease their minds, I personally visited the resort, took photos, and e-mailed them to the group organizer to distribute. While there, I met with the manager to discuss the upcoming visit, and to be assured that all was in order, and that my clients’ needs would be met.” Lorine Charles-St Jules, Regional Marketing Manager of the Saint Lucia Tourist Board, calls Sperrazza “detail-oriented, creative and empathetic to her clients’ needs. During the last two years...Camille and the World Awaits Travel have ascended to one of Saint Lucia’s top booking agencies in Northeast.”
